My Only One,

Here I am in town again the AM, after provisions & etc. Buck comes in affually handy, about 6 miles to where I go. All the dogs follow me, all the time.

Well I had quite a good prospect this A.M. Am going to take a lay on the ground if I strike any thing good, that is I asked for one and was promised one, but you know that stands just about as long as it takes to say it.

I think of you all the time, and when I think of you it comes over me that longing, so you can guess how much I am longing for my only one and that is you.

There is no boat in now, but the Orazaba is expected to-day, and I may not be in again before she sails so will drop you these few lines.

I have a fellow working for me who wears glasses, the only one I ever saw who was any account for anything. You would like him, don't you wish you were here, if you should come back I would fire him just before you arrived or it would be all off with me. I have a little house spotted which is for sale, and if it is not sold before I know whether or not we will be here I will buy it, its a little red house on the left hand hand side going towards Tom's on the first corner from the street Ma. lives on.

Will write no more this time

I think of you lots, all the time.

Always yours

Paul
